PROCEEDINGS

Request under section 74A of the Patents Act 1977
for an opinion on patent number GB 2343670 B

DECISION

Introduction

1. This decision relates to a request for an opinion.
2. The request was filed on 28 April 2009 in the name of British Polythene Ltd (“the requestor”). The request sought an opinion on whether patent GB 2343670 B (“the patent”) in the name of Helen Upton is valid having regard to the teachings of GB 2282126 and the common general knowledge at the time the patent was filed.
3. In a letter dated 12 June 2009, the Office informed the requester that it proposed to refuse the request as it appears to relate solely to a question that was considered during the examination of the patent. The letter offered a hearing to the requestor in the event that it wished to contest the decision. The letter noted that in the absence of any request for a hearing, the opinion request would be refused. The requester did not request a hearing. I therefore intend to refuse the request but before doing so will briefly set out the reasons for my decision.

The law

4. I discussed the law relating to opinions, in particular the various sections and rules relating to the refusal of a request in some detail in an earlier decision in which I refused another request for an opinion<sup>1</sup>. A copy of this decision is publicly available on the Office's website and therefore I do not intend repeating that discussion here. I will however note that the relevant provision so far as this decision is concerned is section 74A(3)(b) which reads:

The comptroller shall issue an opinion if requested to do so under subsection (1) above, but shall not do so-

(a) ...

(b) if for any reason he considers it inappropriate in all the circumstances to do so.

5. In that earlier decision I also considered at some length the question of whether it is appropriate to issue an opinion if the question at the heart of the request has already been considered during the pre-grant examination of the patent. I noted that it was always the intention that the opinion service would not be used to repeat or in some way reappraise the examination of the patent performed either in this Office or at the European Patent Office. Rather the intent was always that there should at least be something new – the request should not simply seek to go over old ground. The rationale for this being, not unreasonably, that a patentee should not be asked to deal again with a question that he has already dealt with to the satisfaction of the Office pre-grant.
6. I should perhaps add that I do not believe that every request for an opinion should be required to cite a new piece of prior art but rather that it should at least put forward a new question. In this case I can find no new question. The prior art relied on was clearly considered during the examination process as is evidenced by the examination reports. Consequently I do not believe that the request gives rise to any new question.

Conclusion

7. I refuse the request made under section 74 by British Polythene Ltd for an opinion on patent number GB 2343670 B.
8. In accordance with Rule 106(4) I believe that it is appropriate to remit the entire fee paid in this case.

Appeal

9. Under the Practice Direction to Part 52 of the Civil Procedure Rules, any appeal must be lodged within 28 days.
